Korindo Begins Marketing Towers as Korindo Wind in North America

Los Angeles (March 30, 2010) – Indonesia-based Korindo has announced it has begun marketing utility-scale wind towers in the United States, Canada and Mexico under the name Korindo Wind.

Korindo Wind is one of the few ISO 9001:2000 certified wind tower manufacturers in the world. To date, the company has delivered 550 towers to customers developing North American wind energy projects and nearly 1,000 worldwide.

With its plant less than a mile from the Port of Ciwandan, Indonesia, and the ability to deliver sections to the port closest to a project site, Korindo Wind is able to develop competitive pricing for customers around the globe. Jakarta-based Korindo, founded in Jakarta in 1969, launched Korindo Wind with the construction of a wind tower manufacturing facility in 2006.

“With the expected upturn in wind energy development in North America, it has become important to more firmly establish Korindo’s wind energy division here,” said Ricky Seung, president of Los Angeles-based Kousa International, exclusive agent for Korindo Wind. “Now, as the U.S. economy rebounds and more financing becomes available for wind projects, Korindo Wind is in an excellent position to form long-term partnerships with companies that develop projects or source primary components such as Korindo Wind’s high quality wind towers.”
